Its P200 frame ensure that even the beginner flier has one of the most durable sport kites available.

Setup and Assembly

1. Lay the kite out in front of you with exposed spine facing down and the bridles facing up. If this is your first time assembling a sport kite, assemble either indoors or in very low wind conditions.

2. Assemble the Leading Edges. The Leading Edge is comprised of two rods connected together with an internal connector ferrule. Slide the lower into the upper fully until completely seated.
